Free Fishing Day in New Mexico

Santa Fe, NM – Saturday, September 27, 2014 is Free Fishing Day across the state and everyone is allowed to fish on public bodies of water without a fishing license. New Mexico State Parks invites you to enjoy a day of free fishing at a park near you.

“Fishing and being in the great outdoors is fun for the whole family,” said State Parks Director Tommy Mutz. “Free Fishing Day is a perfect opportunity for beginners to try out fishing for the first time.”

If you already have a fishing license, consider taking a friend or family member who has never been fishing for the day.

Regular entrance fees apply. State Park officials remind you to always make safety your number one priority—be prepared on the water and always wear your lifejacket! FREE boating safety classes are offered around the state and on-line throughout the year.

Enjoy your New Mexico State Parks today! For more information, call 888—NMPARKS or visit www.nmparks.com.
