Brantley Lake State Park Seven Rivers Day Use Area Open

CARLSBAD, NM – The Seven Rivers Day Use Area of Brantley Lake State Park is now open for visitors for day use only. Construction work on the boat ramp has been completed and is ready for visitor use.

“We are excited to have the Seven Rivers Day Use area open again for visitors,” said Park Superintendent, Adrian Stiteler. “Our hope is that visitors will enjoy the well-maintained and safe boat ramp for their boating pleasure.”

The Seven Rivers Day Use Area is still closed to camping and the primitive dirt road down to the lake will be closed until further notice.

The main side of Brantley Lake State Park provides ample camping opportunities both in Limestone Campground and the Rocky Bay Primitive Area. In the Limestone Campground, visitors can camp with hook-ups to water and electric, and in the primitive area visitors can camp by the lakeshore.
